Technology Readiness Assessment

IT underpins the lion’s share of what associations do, so getting your technology right is imperative. Making a modest investment in an annual check of your tech operations against validated effective practices is well worth it.

ASAE’s Technology Readiness Assessment, based on ASAE Foundation research and hosted on ASAE’s AssociaMetrics benchmarking platform, guides you through 31 questions. Answer those, and get your organization’s overall IT maturity score and performance scores in four major technology-component areas:

- data
- management and strategy
- infrastructure
- digital presence

You’ll also get a concise report articulating the meaning of the scores, areas of success and opportunity, and links to supportive resources.

The Technology Readiness Assessment was scientifically validated to ensure it covered relevant issues, met accepted standards for reliability and stability, and was a valid measure of technology success. Questions were based on the DelCor IT Maturity Model and then refined through interviews and focus groups with IT professionals.

Association Inclusion Index

Use this evidence-based, self-administering instrument to assess your organization’s diversity and inclusion practices and objectives against validated effective practices.

Based on ASAE Foundation research and hosted on ASAE’s AssociaMetrics benchmarking platform, the Association Inclusion Index guides you through 74 questions. Answer those and get your organization’s effectiveness scores in five performance domains and their subdomains. You’ll also get a concise report articulating the meaning of the scores, areas of success and opportunity, and links to supportive resources.

The Association Inclusion Index was developed using the following questions as guidance:

• What are the duties, roles, and responsibilities of nonprofit and association boards of directors, senior staff, and members as they relate to diversity and inclusion practices?

• What are the primary performance dimensions that should be evaluated by associations when thinking about the association’s current diversity and inclusion practices?

• Under each dimension, what are the particular indicators of performance that will inform and demonstrate diversity and inclusion practices?

Extensive research was conducted to find the answers to these questions. The research entailed a review of the literature, best practices, and information related to D+I performance in nonprofit and association management.

Global Maturity Assessment

Use ASAE’s Global Maturity Assessment annually to assess your organization’s readiness and capacity for global operations against validated effective practice.

Based on ASAE Foundation research and hosted on ASAE’s AssociaMetrics benchmarking platform, the Global Maturity Assessment guides you through 53 questions. Answer those, and get your organization’s overall global maturity score, along with effectiveness scores in seven major global-readiness areas:

• strategic and business planning
• management and organizational culture
• leadership engagement
• market insight
• value proposition and engagement model
• global organization, roles, and support
• local operations and service delivery capacity

You’ll also get a concise report articulating the meaning of the scores, areas of success and opportunity, and links to supportive resources. Questions were developed based on qualitative research by the ASAE Foundation and the MCI Group.

The Association CEO Succession Toolkit: A Preparation Guide for Leadership Transitions
By Gary Labranche, CAE

Even though the average CEO stays in his or her position for just seven years and 40 percent of association CEOs are either at or approaching retirement age, many associations do not have up-to-date transition and continuity plans. Boards of directors have a fiduciary responsibility to ensure the continuity of the organization, and the CEO has the responsibility to assist. Succession planning should begin well before a CEO decides to leave. That’s where this resource comes in.

This resource will assist CEOs and board members in developing and maintaining a transition and continuity plan. Informed by insights and examples from CEOs, board members, executive search consultants, and others, as well as his own experience with transitions, author Gary Labranche has developed this practical resource, which provides:

- considerations for different types of transitions—leaves of absence, unplanned exits, and voluntary resignations
- what-to-do-next checklists for handling various transitions
- tips on the executive search process, succession strategy, and onboarding
- a customizable transition and continuity plan on accompanying USB drive.

Help your association transition effectively through its next CEO succession by using the tools in this book to plan ahead.
